A STAGGERING LOSS

Statisticians of the United States Chamber of Commerce have computed the enormous cost to the nation of ill-health and disease. They find these cause an economic loss of $8,000,000 a year, an ever-recurring waste more than double the expenditures of the federal government. To this great total must be added the vast sums spent to eliminate this loss.

In estimating the cost of ill-health, the sums paid by individuals for medical attention, loss of wages and the effect upon industrial production are all taken into account. On the other side of the account are the gains directly due to public health promotion. It is important to take into consideration the tremendous advances made by preventive medicine in checking disease and lengthening life.

Public health agencies of the United States—state and national—operate on about $10,000,000 a year, or nine cents per capita, a small and inadequate sum compared with the average per capita income and the value of the results obtained. Compared with the allotments of public funds for other purposes, those for health purposes seem small.

The common cold causes tremendous economic loss in the course of a year. Because it is so common, it is probably responsible for a large part of the eight billions loss. And yet most colds are avoidable. The worker suffering from a cold is only about 50 per cent efficient, except as a menace to other workers.

Employers who provide proper illumination, ventilation and heat for their employes save more than these cost. But this is preventive work they cannot expect public health agencies to do for them.

LONGER SKIRTS

It was said a few years ago that a difference of six inches in the length of a skirt was the difference between prosperity and ruin for the textile mills.

High-visibility skirts struck a cruel blow to the textile industry. Whereas a dozen yards of material once went into a dress as little as three and a half yards were required when the short skirt was the mode.

So the fashion news that fall and winter styles call for full and flowing skirts is good news for the manufacturers of silk, cotton and woolen fabrics that go into milady's gowns. And what is good for the manufacturers is good for their employes, for the producers of the raw materials they consume and for the people who do business with them.

However, if the fair sex clings to the billowing and tailing skirt this fall and winter it will not be because of this very excellent economic reason.

Why is it called a checkered career? So frequently there is nothing square about it.

Worrying about the past is wasting the present given you for looking forward to the future.

W. N. U. SERVICE

Ray started the car, and once out on the road, he began to show what he knew about speed, and it was not until they had passed several miles in their journey that Ray asked:

"Safe now, isn't it?"

"Nothing's safe until the workmen have the money in their pockets. The bank was held up this morning."

"What?"

Sir George nodded. "Once around this point and I'll tell you." But when they were round the point there was a motor car, obviously placed so as to block the road, while out on the canal bank, looking up and down the tow-path, were three men. Without hesitation Ray, who knew the road well, ran up on the bank, passed around safely and went on at full speed. They glanced back and saw the men running toward the car.

Ray and Sir George looked at each other.

"That lad I saw in the canoe has spread the news that I'm headed up the river. It doesn't look healthy here to me."

"Say no more."

The road seemed comparatively safe going, and Ray took curves and corners in a highly exciting manner. Sir George did nothing to discourage him.

They caught the sound of a motor boat on the canal. There was nothing, Sir George told himself, frightfully unusual in a motor boat coming along the canal, but when a shot came from the motor boat and by the narrowest margin missed their rear tire, he judged it to be an unusual motor boat.

"Zigzag!" he shouted. "Where do your guards begin?"

"Round the next curve."

Luck held—at least long enough to allow them to rock around the next curve.

A car was waiting there, with one of the workmen seated in it. Sir George waved a hand, and as they went by, the car followed and Ray called, "Don't start anything, Luigi, but if they do shoot at their tires."

A cheerful "Alla righta!" followed them.

"There should be another man posted here."

There was. He looked and grinned and waved and followed as Ray belted out his instructions. But a motor boat has no tires. Ray was not anxious to begin a running battle. If he could get beyond the next landing place there might be hope that, seeing his reinforcements, their pursuers would turn tail.

Sir George looked behind him and whistled. The car they had seen had outdistanced their followers without offering battle and was tearing toward them. By some chance there were no other cars on the road in sight.

"It is going to be a close squeeze." "Slump and keep your head down, Sandison," ordered Ray, who somehow could not bring himself to say "Sir George." "What's the matter with those men of ours? Why didn't they give the tires merry h—?"

"Down," shouted Sir George, and followed his own advice. "What's that?"

"That was one of our tires. Oh shades of William Penn, but we're in a tight place on this peaceful road."

The machine wobbled and swayed. The other car crept up on them, but the men in it did not shoot again, evidently confident that they had them completely in their power.

Ray was bumping along to the accompaniment of a sort of chant. "Keep your head down. If I can only make it to that corner. Oh ham and onions! How mad I will be if they stop us this side. What's that?"

The oldest sound seemed to fill his ears. In a moment he realized what it was and then despite the gravity of the situation, he laughed aloud. They had turned a corner and before them streamed what seemed a small army of cars, almost all of that cheap, but useful make which had made its producer both famous and rich. Each car held four men and every man except the driver was armed.

"If you can laugh now," exclaimed Ray, "you have your nerve with you! Look!"

Their pursuers had rounded the corner confidently, counting on their superior car and speed. The motor boat was audible a little distance away, closely following. It dawned on Ray, who had been wondering why they bothered with a motor boat, that they had planned it as a way of escape. If things got too hot, and their tires shot up, they could escape in the boat to where a car was waiting further down the canal.

But by the advent of Ray's guard the situation had utterly changed. The workmen's cars, as they came, had opened out their formation and now formed a long alley, one on each side through which moved the disabled car in which Sir George and his companion sat. As their car wobbled slowly forward the other cars closed in behind it, three deep. Sir George through this line of cars toward the camp. As they did so their pursuers fired and the foremost workers returned their fire.

"Dash it," Sir George yelled to Ray. "I can't let the men take the risk!" He climbed out of the car. Ray followed him.

The enemy car turned and, to Sir George's amazement, swerved towards the canal without firing again. Ray called in two languages, Italian and English: "Don't shoot!" and ran to the front to count the casualties. One of the workers had been hit by a splinter when his windshield was shattered, but he was not dangerously wounded.

At least one of the enemy had been hit and two of their tires were punctured.

"They're done for," Ray shouted. "Steady!" he called to the workmen nearest him, who had begun to edge toward the enemy. "We're only here to keep the money out of their clutches. The police will do the chasing."

Sir George gave a quick exclamation. The motor boat had reached the spot where the disabled car waited and at once the men in the car jumped out and ran toward the canal bank. One of them limped and another had a wounded hand.

The Italian and negro workmen gave a roar of disgust and pleaded with Ray to let them get at the boat. Ray was obstinate. He pointed out the men on the boat armed and ready for trouble.

Sir George groaned aloud, and ran toward one of the workmen's cars. "I can't let them get away. Let's follow them."

The first motor cycle policeman came flying down the road. Ray shouted and pointed at the motor boat.

The motor boat was well on its way as the policeman passed Sir George. "The locks!" The policeman called as he dashed past. "Get word to the locks. They can't pass them."

Ray and Sir George jumped into one of the smaller cars and sped up to the works.

Paunting, Ray flung himself on the telephone and talked rapidly.

When he looked up his companion was divesting himself of the money belt.

"Call them in," he suggested, "pay them all now and tell them Mr. MacBeth will hear what they have done for him today. Oh, I say, Browne, if we'd only gone after them. What a day it would have been!"

"I'm content to call it a day, as it is," Ray told him. "We've got the money, haven't we?"

He turned from the phone. "They left the boat before they got to the locks, climbed into a car that is still dodging the police. I've told them to relay any message that comes through to MacBeth's island. The new tires are on and I'm all set to go."

Sir George looked at him a little shyly. "I say, Browne," he said, "would you mind not saying much about this affair to the women. Be deucedly awkward, you know, if my stepmother gets word there was any shooting."

"Be Deucedly Awkward, You Know, If My Stepmother Gets Word There Was Any Shooting."

Ray burst out laughing. "Daredevil George!" he shouted, "who wanted to stage a running fight along the canal, afraid of his stepmother!"

"True as death! You don't know Aggy—Lady Sandison—well."

They climbed into the car but Ray did not start it at once. He leaned back and surveyed his companion.

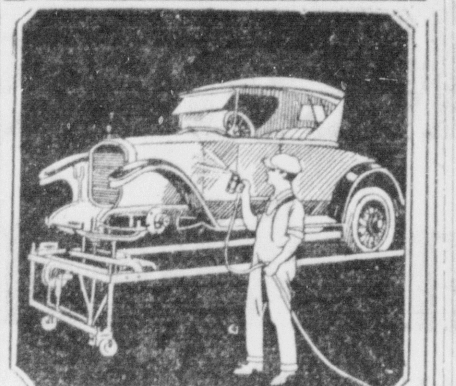

"I noticed you are not crowing over the success of your plan," Ray told his companion.

Sir George shook his head. "Certainly not." Then he laughed. "My word, Browne, I never thought it would come off. I give you my word I never expected to have so much fun. It was more like a wild American play than—than life."

"Life's crazier than any play," Ray

FUGITIVE FOR 47 YEARS BROUGHT BACK AND FREED

Hunted for Almost Half A Century, Nemesis Overtakes James Neely in Person of Son of Man He is Alleged to Have Slain in Fight Over Boyhood Sweetheart

ALABAMA, Oct. 20.—For 47 years he has been a wanderer. He has trailed through half a dozen States. In one State he was married. In another he was separated from his wife. In a third he was arrested.

And so at last his wanderings have ended. There is no reason any longer for him to exile himself from the place he once called home. As a fugitive from justice he has been brought back to Alabama, tried and acquitted. He is to be tried for murder.

Hot-Headed Youth

In his fragile old voice he will tell you without rancor why they arrested him. Yes, it was in 1883 that he killed a man. He knows that man's name, but his memory falters. He isn't quite sure why he killed him. At 23, like most young fellows, he was hot-headed. The acts of 23, however, do not matter much to an old man of 70. Nothing matters, save that still small voice of conscience which cannot be stilled.

Forty-seven years ago James Neely fled from his home and the scenes of his boyhood because of a fatal fight on top of Georgia Mountain, near Guntersville, Ala. In that fight Hiram Cooley, another young man, was killed.

All For A Woman

It was over a woman. But the woman angle has faded from the mind of aged Jim Neely. Life has beaten him. Penniless and feeble he was arrested in Tyler, Texas, where fate sent the son of the man he had murdered to make his home.

Witness Fatal Fight

The brother of the slain man, Jim Cooley, 79, and John Berry, 68, are the only two living witnesses of the battle that took place almost half a century ago. Cooley says the cause of the quarrel was over a 16-year-old girl, Mary Hilburn, now Mrs. Will Brown. The other witnesses to the fatal fight is John Berry Walls, a Georgia Mountain farmer.

A Wanderer's Fate

The fight brought about by unbridled temper of headstrong youth, set James Neely, accompanied by his brother Tom, on the life of a wanderer. After weeks of toil through rocky mountains they stopped in the mountains of East Tennessee, above Knoxville. It was there they pitched their lot.

After many years in East Tennessee, Neely again moved to a secluded settlement in Southern Ohio, just above Cincinnati. His brother Tom died.

His Nemesis

He went to Tyler to see another brother. While there he met his childhood sweetheart. But at Tyler also lived A. C. Cooley, the son of the man Neely is accused of slaying. He recognized Jim Neely as the man accused of slaying his father and notified the authorities.

End of the Trail

Neely was taken into custody and after three days in Tyler jail was started back to Alabama to stand trial in the Cooley slaying.

The 47 years of wandering, with his conscience never letting him forget that he was a hunted man, has left its mark on Jim Neely.

James McGinley Dies After Year's Illness

Following an illness of one year's duration, James McGinley, son of John W. and Margaret McGinley, died at his parents' home yesterday.

The deceased is survived by his parents, one brother and two sisters. Funeral will be held Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock from his late residence, 541 Locust street. Solemn Requiem Mass will be held in St. Mark's Church at 10 o'clock with interment in St. Mark's Cemetery.

Members of Bristol Council, No. 906, Knights of Columbus, and members of Goodwill Fire Company, are invited to attend the funeral.

Mrs. Margaret Chase Dies at Daughter's Home

Mrs. Margaret Chase, wife of John W. Chase, of Garden street, died at 1:30 o'clock this morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mary Corcoran, in Tacony.

The deceased was a native of Ireland but came to America when she was only a child. She had been a resident of Bristol for the past 45 years. Mrs. Chase had not been well for the past two years and during the last five months her condition had become worse. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

A husband and two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Canfield, Garden street, Bristol; and Mrs. Corcoran, of Tacony, survive. A sister, Mrs. Bridget McLaughlin, also survives in Philadelphia.

Funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock from the Corcoran residence and burial will be in St. Dominick's cemetery, Holmesburg. Services will be held in St. Leo's church.

Edwin F. Custer Weds Miss Lillian E. Babbitt

honeymoon trip via motor, through the New England States and Canada and will be away about ten days.

Mrs. Custer traveled in a brown transparent velvet dress trimmed with egg-shell lace, featuring the cowl neck-line and flared skirt. Her slippers were suede and her velvet hat matched her dress. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Custer will reside at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Babbitt, for the winter.

The bride, was a resident of Bristol for about three and a half years and for the past year, has been residing in Edgely, and prior to her marriage she held a secretarial position at the Keystone Aircraft Corporation. The groom is a native of Delaware, but has been residing in Trenton for quite some time, and is employed at the Keystone Aircraft Corp.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were: to the maid of honor, a white gold chain and pendant, with a large sapphire. The bridesmaids received bracelets of rhinestones and black jet.

The groom's gift to the best man was a natural ebony military set of brushes, and to his ushers silver belt buckles with the monograms. Among the many gifts given to the bride, was an electric waffle iron and waffle service set from her fellow employees at the Keystone plant.

Mrs. John Donahue, of Dorrance street, spent a day last week visiting her sister, Miss Elizabeth Haney, who is a patient in the Germantown Hospital, Philadelphia.

FILM BROKEN

When the film "New Ways for Old" was received at Croydon last week, where it was to be shown in connection with local health work, it was found to be broken. It is expected that the film will be shown at a later date. Otto Grupp, manager, had offered use of his theatre for presentation of same.

HULMEVILLE

Many baskets of fresh fruits and vegetables, and cans and jars of eatables were in evidence at the Neshaminy M. E. Church, yesterday, Sunday School scholars and church members taking contributions to the service. Baskets of mixed fruits filled by some of the women are to be distributed to the shut-ins of the church membership; while the canned goods and other fruits and vegetables will be sent to Philadelphia institutions. A decision has been reached to conduct Sunday School sessions each Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, with church services starting at 11.

The appearance of the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. S. Huntsman, Green street and Bellevue avenue, is being changed materially, as extensive alterations are being made to the exterior.

Miss Adeline E. Reetz will entertain Peppy Pals sewing class at the home of her sister, Mrs. Richard Dunlap, tomorrow evening.

The prayer service of the Methodist Church will be held this Thursday evening at the residence of Aldridge Everitt, Middletown Township, at eight o'clock. Those not having a means of conveyance are asked to gather at the church at 7:30, and transportation will be provided.

At the home of Samuel J. Illick, Bellevue avenue, will the M. E. Official Board meet this evening.

SAYS HE WILL JAIL 100 WOMEN

EASTON, Oct. 20.—A. G. Mace, tax collector of Pen Argyl, declared that more of the 100 women delinquent taxpayers will be jailed today unless they "pay up."

Mrs. Nora Everett, mother of four children, passed a few hours in jail yesterday after asserting she could not pay the $51 and $7.20 additional in costs and penalties. Friends posted $50 bail for a hearing on her claim for exemption under the insolvency law of 1901.

While she was in jail her husband, Norman, a railroad fireman, cared for the children. Two other women paid when commitment papers were issued.

ENTERTAINED

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bonner, of 443 Jefferson avenue, recently entertained Mrs. Margaret McHugh and children, Mr. Cornelius McHugh, Mr. and Mrs. J. Laughlin and Mr. and Mrs. John McHugh, all of Coaldale, Pa.

Who Buys Building Association Stock?

A MOTHER took fifteen shares when her daughter began school. It matured when the daughter graduated at High School and will pay for a college education for this daughter.

A RETIRED BUSINESS MAN over fifty years of age took 75 double payment shares—25 every six months. He is now collecting $5,000 every six months. This man never carried Building Association stock until the double series plan was instituted at Bristol.

A SCHOOL TEACHER took three shares every six months for several years—it is now giving her an extra income of $600 every six months as it matures.

A DOCTOR subscribed for sufficient shares to pay for his home.

A PAPER HANGER carries ten shares of stock and uses it annually as quick collateral to borrow a few hundred dollars and buy paper at the best market price.

A STATE EMPLOYEE in New Jersey has carried 50 shares of stock for years, and takes new shares immediately on receiving payment of matured shares.

AN INSURANCE EXECUTIVE mails his check to Bristol monthly; he carries both life insurance and Building Association stock.

A RAILROAD CONDUCTOR has carried a large number of shares for many years.

A LAWYER has carried shares since he began the practice of law.

A NURSE bought and paid for her home with Building Association stock.

A DRUGGIST has carried stock for almost 40 years.

A BANKER began saving through the Building Association as well as the bank. As his stock matured he placed it in the saving fund of the bank.

A STENOGRAPHER has accumulated $8,000 by maturity of stock she carried.

A WOOL SORTER has saved $3,000 by investing in Building Association stock.

A SECTION HAND on the Railroad carries 25 shares of stock for himself and family.

A GARAGE PROPRIETOR carries 20 shares of stock continually.

A SURVEYOR is never without 10 or more shares.

A MEDICAL STUDENT carries 15 shares to help him over his first year of practice.

SIX FRATERNAL ORDERS in Bristol are now carrying stock.

There is almost no end to the list, and there is hardly any class, trade, business or profession that is not represented.
